

flushable

[fluh-shuh-bol] adjective

1. suitable for disposal by flushing down a toilet
2. pee, poop, toilet paper
3. a myth that is often assigned to things that should not be disposed of in drains, such as baby wipes, paper towels, cigarettes, wrappers, goldfish, and other items that will undoubtedly clog sewer lines and wastewater plant equipment
4. in some cases, hopes and dreams

For more information on what's flushable and what's not, see "Don't Flush That" by Ricardo Lambert

